

VILLA POSEIDON THE VILLA OF THE GODS

For those who consider Greek mythology and the Greek world of the Gods a thing of the past, think again. Artist Günther Fahrner shares with us a mythological tale with astonishing topicality:

Not so long ago Ποσειδών Poseidōn was struck by a curiosity that he had not experienced before. He wanted to explore an important river, one which feeds his seas. To ensure that his expedition was as well-founded and successful as possible he asked one Κένταυρος Κένταυρος for support, for Centaurs are known for being clever and far-sighted. This particular one advised Poseidon to choose the Danube, and to advance as far as the very charming place of Wesenufer. Poseidon's project pleased the Centaur so much that he decided to accompany him on this journey.

This plan was not kept secret in the mythological world for long. Soon Πήγασος Pēgasos offered his services and even Αφροδίτη Aphrodītē found great pleasure in the idea!

The journey was very exciting! Nevertheless, I do not want to go into more detail here, but rather, I shall continue the narrative from their destination in Wesenufer. At this point I shall not conceal the astonishing fact that the mythological travel group in Wesenufer took such a great liking to this place, especially to the Fahrner Sculpture Park; so much so, in fact, that they kept postponing their return journey.

This delay put both Χρόνος Chrónos and Ζεύς Zeús in an increasingly bad mood. It was clear to them that this adventure must come to an abrupt end, lest history go off the rails.

They sought the advice of Δαίδαλος Daídalos, known always to be very wise. The advice was simple, yet efficient: he suggested that local artists Annemarie and Günther be commissioned to capture the mythological creatures in boxes at a favourable moment, to then send them back home with a transport company and, of course, all the necessary formalities (T2L form!).

And so it happened that they were captured in crates and sent to Villa Poseidon in Cyprus, where, united, they share a very good time together, always happy to recount this mythological adventure, which admittedly seems a little unlikely, yet magical, nevertheless.

Artist: Günther Fahrner

Villa Poseidon – The Villa of the Gods: Video

